Antiquities Solutions, a mysterious shop which, according to softly whispered rumor will never appear in the same place twice, a shop that seems out of time, where those lucky enough to be invited find themselves compelled to discuss their largest, most worrying issues with the staff, who always seem to have the perfect solution to their problem, for this shop's wares are no normal antiques, each has a storied history, and mysterious effects that, if used correctly can usually solve the customer's problems quite easily.

Eric, an aspiring architect wanders into Antiquities Solutions one night, not realizing where he's wound up but, like every customer to find the shop faced with troubles with the fairer sex. Kaitlyn, another intern in the same program as Eric is cunning, deceitful, and willing to do anything to get ahead in the field, she's spent the last few months using Eric to do it, stealing his work, taking full credit for every project and sucking up to their supervisors in the program, willing to use Eric and anyone else she can to get the power and position she craves. Antiquities Solutions lives up to its name oncemore, providing Eric with a strange, mysteriously compelling set of silver coins, alchemically forged centuries before with the ability to ensnare the mind, alter a subject's memories and desires in any way the coin's master holds. Armed with these potent new tools Eric will have little problem convincing Kaitlyn of the need to reassess her opinion of him, and rededicate her drive and desires onto a course that Eric will find much more enjoyable than he did their previous relationship, but what will be the result when Kaitlyn gets her hands on the coins? Disaster for Eric? or possibly something much more enjoyable? Either way it will come as a surprise for Eric...
