Most of us want to make a difference in others' lives. It does not have to be a big difference to a lot of people. What we want is to inspire someone else, to make a positive memory that will last long after we are gone. And if we are parents, we naturally want to be positive influences in our children's lives.

In author Sandra Ehrgott's devotional she shares e-mails written for and sent to her children. The author connects scriptural passages with family members and events, showing their relevance in everyday life. While written for her family, the stories in these e-mails are about things many of us face. You will be able to take many of the Scriptures and stories and apply them to your life. They can provide a stepping-off point to discussions and memory-making with your family.

Insights and inspiration found in Good Morning Children will make a difference in your life. You will be able to use your newly found perspective to make a difference in the lives of those around you and create positive memories in your family and others.
