The Textbook of the Universe: The Genetic Ascent to God Steven E. Romer

This book describes a new theory of the origin and purpose of consciousness, and binds together all abstract thought in history into a coherent framework. Then it presents a model for explaining the binding problem via glial cells (and the physics of time), which necessarily interface with and affect neuron function. Further, and most importantly, a powerful new methodology for getting real useful information about consciousness is presented by using probabilities and the analysis of meaning. Many examples are presented from years of doing this new method.
